

You, Your Green Bin and the Bigger Picture

Tutor: Claire Bastin

Workshop Outline

A common theme developing in the media in the early part of the 21st century is that society faces multiple global crises; environmental degradation, resource depletion, climate change, social unrest, inequality and economic failure all feature heavily in topical debates.

These crises can be difficult for individuals to wrestle with, raising a number of questions. Can adopting more sustainable ways of living as individuals contribute to solutions to global crises? What roles can individuals, businesses and governments play in finding such solutions?

This workshop will draw together theory and practice in a practical and positive way, to consider such questions and perhaps challenge the way you think about the economy, environment and society.
